Day Three

Visit Unesco World Heritage site of Saltaire and Salts Mill

A day to discover Saltaire, a UNESCO world heritage site, is a unique and beautiful Victorian 'model' village, built between 1851 and 1876 and conceived by wool baron Sir Titus Salt.

Sir Titus Salt built what is now known as Salts Mill a grand textile mill in 1853, which employed over 3000 workers. He also built churches, schools and houses for the workforce, which still remain today.

Situated 4.5 miles from Bradford Salts Mill today is home to one of the largest collections of David Hockney's art and an array of independent shops.
